From Four Original Horses to Today

Faroese Horses

Faroese horses have lived on the Faroe Islands for centuries and adapted to the harsh climate. They are small, strong, and sure-footed, and were used for work and transport.

The breed was close to extinction in the 20th century, but was preserved, and today efforts are being made to ensure its survival as an important part of Faroese cultural heritage.

Sepac 2026:

Skansin

Skansin is a historic fort situated on a hill by the harbour in Tórshavn. It is said that Magnus Heinason built the first fort in Tórshavn in 1580, after his merchant ship had been plundered the year before. A new fort was built in 1782. Tórshavn Fort is protected and regarded as an important cultural heritage monument in the Faroe Islands.

120 Years of the

Faroese Anthem

The Faroese national anthem Tú alfagra land mítt was written by Simun av Skarði in 1906, while the melody was composed by Petur Alberg in 1907. The song quickly became a symbol of the Faroese self-government movement. For many years, however, it competed with the song Eg oyggjar veit for recognition as the national anthem of the Faroe Islands.

Christmas Stamps

Saint Lucia

Saint Lucia was a Christian woman from Syracuse who helped persecuted Christians and was killed for her faith. She was later declared a saint and has become a symbol of light and hope in the darkness.

In the Faroe Islands, Lucia processions are held in December in kindergartens, schools, and churches.
